

The Role of Professional Qualifications in the Advancement of Geoscience Careers

Dr. Eleanor Williams

The Geological Society of London

One of the Geological Society of London's key objectives is to provide support to its members for their ongoing professional development. The Society's Chartered Geologist (CGeol) status is an internationally recognised professional qualification for those working in geoscience and is adopted as the standard in Hong Kong. Eleanor will introduce Chartership and its benefits, as well as provide some insights into commencing a pathway to Chartership, whether you are a student or an experienced Earth scientist. She will also describe some of the other ways that the Society supports geoscience professionals.
